“It is A make-or- break time for the world. When leaders gather in Glasgow, Scotland, for 26th conference of the parties (COP 26) to the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC), they meet with the recognition that the time has run out. The U N chief has sounded “Code Red for Humanity” based on the findings of climate scientists. But we no longer need scientists to tell us this. We can see the devastation in our world –every day there is a news about another region that has faced an extreme weather catastrophe. As I write this, my mind is numbed by the images from the northern Indian Himalayan state of Uttarakhand and the southern state of Kerala., were mountains have crashed and lives and homes have been lost . The sheer fury of nature must make us think about what the future will be like and about the crises we must avert at all costs.”

Sunitha Narain, (Director General of CSE)
